With the discriptive matter the observed conditions of this season is included.

Necessary equipment and research work to enable proper and systematic regualtion is called to attention.

Special attention is alled to the need of registers, headgates, determination of transmission losses, means of distribution, and transporation.

The past season being one of extreme low water, the time of commissioner for this district was almost wholly occupied in distribution and not permitting of time for gathering an extensive amount of affirmative data.
